

Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Friday 26 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:

Mostly dry with plenty of sunshine during Friday.

Today:

Any fog patches clearing during the morning, leaving a dry day with plenty of sunshine and light winds. Cloudier and breezier in the far north with a little rain or drizzle in Shetland at first.

Tonight:

Central and southern areas dry with clear periods allowing a frost and a few patches of fog to form. Cloudier across the north with some rain moving east.

Saturday:

Band of cloud and patchy light rain moving south into northern England and north Wales, else dry with sunny spells and mild once again.

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:

Continuing largely dry for most with patchy cloud and sunny spells by day, and some overnight frost and fog. Temperatures on the mild side and feeling warm in light winds.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.